What it would be like to wake up in a world of happiness? When Luci opens her eyes, she is surrounded by her most beautiful un-lived dreams. The magnificence of this dream world is simply breathtaking; her old life is nothing but a distant echo. Every breath Luci takes is like a brush stroke and every space that opens up is a symphony of unimagined possibilities. And before her stands the man of her dreams.

A new beginning, her imagination whispers. Dreams can be dashed, reminds reason. Her dream man senses that Luci, blinded by so much happiness, may not trust him. But he knows they will only have a chance if they allow their two worlds to merge. He fights with all he has for the love of his life. Luci faces the fundamental question that we must all ask ourselves at some point: Should we remain realistic or do we have the courage to live our dreams?

The meaning of the show title

The word BLINDED describes how Luci is entirely overwhelmed by her emotions. DELIGHT refers to the intoxicating, almost ecstatic feelings that she experiences. Luci is so caught up in the happiness of her dreams and her romantic feelings that she wonders whether it can all be real or will vanish in the next blink of an eye.

Is it all lies or love? BLINDED by DELIGHT expresses this emotional dichotomy. A passionate dance of powerful emotions.
